of Phi Eta Sigma
Volume LXXXI, 2011

In keeping with the spirit of Phi Eta Sigma and Western Kentucky University, Phi Eta Sigma used the “lamp of learning” from our Society crest as inspiration for funding a campus lamp post. This contribution was made in honor of the retirement of Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel and his wife Marge from the national office in January 2010. A plaque mounted in front of the post recognizes Jack and Marge for their contributions to both Phi Eta Sigma and Western Kentucky University.

It Takes A Village For A Successful Convention

by Molly M. Lawrence
Grand President

There was something very different about our Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops held October 1-3, 2010, in Knoxville, Tennessee. It took me a while to put my finger on what exactly was the difference. There seemed to be a heightened sense of energy and enthusiasm at this convention.

What caused the difference? Was it my perception as national Grand President, since this was only my second convention to preside over? That accounted for some of the feeling for sure. I was more attuned and aware of the convention nuances. But still there was something more.

Was it our wonderful student Executive Board members? They certainly contributed immensely to the convention, and it would not have been the same without their enthusiastic participation and support. The bar is high for our new Executive Committee student members.

Was it the faculty advisers in attendance? The advisers certainly showed their passion for Phi Eta Sigma. The advisers' workshop, ably facilitated by Mary Jo Custer and Ryan Dye, engaged the advisers in networking and meaningful collaboration. Our convention evaluations have noted their overall high rating of the convention.

Was it the national office staff? Kudos to Elaine Powell and Ria Butts. The convention they planned and executed was exceptional. We are so looking forward to the 2012 convention.

Was it the fact that Phi Eta Sigma gave back through the educational philanthropy? That project added a depth of emotion and demonstrated the service commitment of Phi Eta Sigma chapters.

All of the above certainly significantly contributed. Bottom line, it was the teamwork. Everyone contributing to make the Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops one of the best ever!

Be a part of charting the future path of Phi Eta Sigma. Consider running for a position as a national officer or member of the national Executive Committee, or attend as a convention delegate or adviser. The next convention will in October 2012.

Chapters, I challenge you to start planning for attendance now. We will also have another educational philanthropy. With a year and a half notice, we are hopeful to do even more for the schools and students of our host city.

Honoring the Past, Embracing the Future

by Elaine J. Powell
Executive Director

A new year has begun, and 2010 seems like just a blur. Retirements, personnel changes, new chapter charterings, and a wonderful Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops are just a few of the highlights of 2010 for Phi Eta Sigma. Looking back over the past year, I realize I have much to be thankful for—a loving family, caring friends, good health, and a career that provides challenges and a great deal of satisfaction.

I am blessed to have been trained and mentored by Jack Sagabiel, who not only has managed the business affairs of Phi Eta Sigma with great care and finesse for nearly twenty years, but is also a fountain of historical information. Jack regularly reminds us of the ideals of the founders and the development of various aspects of the Society's composition, such as student leadership at conventions and the Founders Fund scholarship program. He places emphasis on operating the Society with honesty and integrity and in a way that brings the most benefit to the students who have earned national honor society recognition. My goal is to continue to implement this philosophy.

Jack has told the national office staff many stories about his early years on the Phi Eta Sigma national Executive Committee, including recollections of his predecessor, former Grand Secretary-Treasurer James E. Foy. In the Feature Articles section of this Forum issue, you will read about Dean Foy's passing in October 2010, and you will note the many tributes to him as a father, veteran, university administrator, and Phi Eta Sigma legend. Dean Foy was a true friend and advocate to the students at Auburn University and in Phi Eta Sigma chapters nationwide. Although he had not been actively involved in the honor society for many years, his influence has been and will continue to be felt as long as Phi Eta Sigma continues to recognize and reward outstanding achievement among first-year students at universities and colleges across the U.S.

The national Executive Committee is composed of distinguished university faculty and administrators, as well as innovative student leaders, who share their experience and insights in order to keep Phi Eta Sigma strong, to expand its reach, and to increase its ability to reward outstanding members with financial assistance. I cannot express enough my sincere appreciation of Grand President Molly Lawrence and the entire Executive Committee membership for their patience and support of me during my first year as Executive Director, as well as their hard work and strong leadership in preparing for and conducting the 2010 national convention. It is an honor to work with each of these individuals.

Now I must make mention of my own personal support team: those who help me perform my job every day, in addition to giving extra effort at convention time. At the top of the list is Ria Butts, who has worked for Phi Eta Sigma since 1993 and last year accepted additional responsibilities as Records Manager. She knows very well all of the work and preparations required to put on a national convention, having been involved in this process for several years. Not only is Ria my right hand, my reminder of important details, and often my conscience; she is also a true friend.

The newest addition to the Phi Eta Sigma national office is Kelly Figley, who joined our staff as Executive Assistant last July, right in the middle of convention preparations. She hit the ground running to keep track of registrations and prepare convention materials, while handling membership orders, answering a multitude of phone calls related to the convention and other business, and just learning all the responsibilities of her new position. Kelly has been a valuable asset to the Society, and you will no doubt get better acquainted with her as time goes on.

And finally, I must express my heartfelt gratitude to my husband Ricky, whom many of you met at the 2010 convention. Not only did Ricky support and take care of me during the convention (as he has for the past thirty-five years), but he also ran errands for me, moved boxes of supplies, and helped with registration. In addition, he made several trips to and from the Knoxville airport transporting Executive Committee members and other attendees when our convention shuttle service was not available.

Phi Eta Sigma has a strong foundation upon which to build a future. We have a fantastic team of national leaders, support staff, chapter advisers, and student leaders who will guide the Society's future. And we have the promise of success found in the intellect and dreams of the high-achieving student members nationwide that will boost Phi Eta Sigma into a prosperous future of recognizing and rewarding outstanding academic achievement.

Executive Director Elaine Powell (center) bid a fond farewell and heartfelt thanks to University of Tennessee chapter officers Courtney Miller and Nicole Aloï on the last day of the 2010 national convention.

Touching Lives Began with our Society's Founding

by Jack Sagabiel
Grand Secretary-Treasurer

Where has the time gone? Surely I am not the first person to ponder such a question. My first Phi Eta Sigma national convention experience was during the nineteenth national convention hosted by Purdue University on October 13-15, 1968. That year our Society inducted 7,234 new members, and the national membership fee was $10. In 1968 three charter members of the University of Illinois founding chapter were still active with the Society, serving as national Executive Committee officers: Grand President G. Herbert Smith of Willamette University, Grand Treasurer Ray Glos of Miami University of Ohio, and Grand Historian Fred Turner of the University of Illinois. Meeting these gentlemen and others was a national convention highlight for this new chapter adviser.

Excitement ran high as 1968 Purdue convention attendees began to discuss plans for the golden anniversary celebration scheduled for March 25, 1973. This enthusiasm continued to build while all Phi Eta Sigma roads were leading to Baton Rouge and Louisiana State University for the twentieth national convention in 1970, with long-time Phi Eta Sigma leader Archie Lejeune providing chapter adviser leadership.

The twenty-first convention returned to the founding campus of the University of Illinois to celebrate the Society's golden anniversary in 1973. Among the highlights of the convention were luncheon remarks by Dean Fred Turner, a charter member of the Illinois chapter and student affairs dean emeritus at the university at that time. Another convention speaker was Mr. Marvin Payton, the first campus chapter president in 1923. I was the convention parliamentarian and chapter adviser at Western Kentucky University.

The twenty-second national convention was hosted by Auburn University in 1974, with leadership from Dean Jim Foy and his wife Emmalu. During one of the convention meals Dean Fred Turner made this "off-the-cuff" remark: "I think Jack Sagabiel would make an excellent Executive Committee member." Dean Turner, who was still serving as Grand Historian of Phi Eta Sigma, passed away on September 6, 1975. Shortly thereafter I was elected to the Executive Committee by the board members. Herb Smith and Ray Glos from the 1923 founding chapter were still active on the Executive Committee. By 1976, Phi Eta Sigma was inducting more than 13,000 members each year, and our Society listed a net worth of $216,000. Ten $500 Founders Fund national scholarships were awarded in 1976.

My wife Marge has joined with me in attending every Phi Eta Sigma national convention since 1973. The continued growth and vitality of Phi Eta Sigma is a testament to the dedicated leadership of the Executive Committee, as well as the chapter adviser and chapter officer direction from coast to coast. Together our Society leaders are a good team, and I feel Phi Eta Sigma will continue to touch lives and reward academic excellence for many years to come.

I can only speculate how Herb Smith, Ray Glos, Fred Turner, and their wives must have felt as they visited together again at the golden anniversary convention in 1973. I can still see these couples, long-time special friends from their undergraduate days, visiting together for the last time together on earth. I believe they were laying the foundation for new administration leadership with their continued spirit for the honors recognition they began.

Hats off to all who touched the lives of my wife Marge and me during our years of Society fellowship. We feel the best era for Phi Eta Sigma is in our Society's future. Phi Eta Sigma chapter advisers, student leaders, and the membership of the national Executive Committee will make it so.

New Chapters Installed

Since the 2010 FORUM was published, Phi Eta Sigma has chartered three new chapters and reactivated one chapter. Several campuses are in the planning phase pursuant to chartering their chapters.

BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY

Boise, Idaho
April 19, 2010

The Boise State University campus is nestled along the south bank of the Boise River, directly across from the Julia Davis Park and Downtown Boise. A metropolitan research university of distinction, Boise State offers four doctoral degrees, seventy-three master's degrees, one hundred baccalaureate degrees, and seven associate degrees. University President Robert Kustra is pleased to share with all friends of the university the campus-wide passion and legacy, which is the success of "Bronco" students.

Dr. Jeremy Ball, associate professor of criminal justice, served as charter chapter adviser. Dr. Ball had been inducted into the Indiana University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, where he served as community service chair and senior adviser. In addition to his interest in chartering a chapter at Boise State University, Dr. Ball was approached by Maegan Wagner, a Phi Eta Sigma member and transfer student from California State University-Chico, regarding chartering at Boise in 2009.

Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel was acquainted with Dr. Ball from his involvement in the 1994 national convention. Because of that strong connection to the Society and Indiana University, Dr. Sagabiel enlisted some friends to help him charter the chapter at Boise State. It was a special moment for the new members of the Boise State University chapter when Grand President Emeritus John Harrell, Executive Director Elaine Powell, and Executive Committee member and Indiana University chapter adviser Timothy Lemper joined Dr. Sagabiel for the chartering. Ironically, Mr. Harrell was Dr. Ball's Phi Eta Sigma adviser at Indiana University, and Mr. Lemper was co-senior adviser with Dr. Ball; so the occasion was somewhat of a reunion.

Chapter officers Maegan Wagner (president), Kyra

Harris (vice president), and Rachael Nagrone (treasurer), along with Dr. Ball, conducted the chartering and induction ceremony on April 19, 2010. Boise State University dignitaries in attendance included Dean Melissa Lavitt of the College of Social Sciences and Public Affairs; Dr. Michael Laliberte, vice president of student affairs; and President Robert Kustra, who opened the ceremony with a warm welcome for students, families, and guests. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel presented a brief history of Phi Eta Sigma prior to presenting the campus charter to the chapter leadership.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE

Emory, Virginia
April 25, 2010

Emory and Henry College is a private liberal arts college located in Emory, Virginia. Founded in 1836, the College is named after John Emory, a Methodist bishop, and Patrick Henry, an American patriot and Virginia's first governor. The College's liberal arts academic program is based upon a required four-year core curriculum of history, literature, and culture. The entire 168-acre central campus is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and the Virginia Register of Historic Landmarks.

The chartering ceremony featured welcome remarks by Dr. Rosalind Reichard, president of the college, and closing remarks by Dr. Chris Qualls, vice president for academic affairs. Chapter advisers Dr. Joe Lane and Dr. Joseph Reiff conducted the induction ceremony with the able leadership of chapter officers Lauren Trotman, Ryan Jenks, Hannah Clayton, and Eric Holland. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel presented a brief history of Phi Eta Sigma prior to presenting the campus charter to the chapter leadership.

UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE AT MARTIN

Martin, Tennessee
April 29, 2010

The University of Tennessee at Martin, a campus in the University of Tennessee System, was established in 1900 and currently enrolls approximately 7,600 students. Given its rural location, much of the focus of the university has been on undergraduate studies in education and agriculture, although many other courses of study are offered, particularly in the liberal arts. Recent years have seen an increasing emphasis on business and engineering in the school's programs.

Phi Eta Sigma originally chartered on the UT-Martin campus in 1974. Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson and Dr. George Daniel provided the chartering leadership for the chapter's reactivation in 2010 and continue to serve as chapter advisers. Charter chapter officers included president Mary Unger, vice president Freda Cunningham, treasurer Paige Laurie, and secretary Catherine Greer. Three hundred honor society students representing disciplines from across the entire university enrollment were introduced as charter members. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel presented a brief history of Phi Eta Sigma prior to presenting the campus charter to the chapter leadership.

TEXAS SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY

Houston, Texas
November 19, 2010

When Texas Southern University opened its doors in September 1947, it enrolled 2,300 students in two schools, one division, and one college—the Law School, the Pharmacy School, the Vocational Division, and the College of Arts and Sciences. Today, Texas Southern University offers bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs in the following academic colleges and schools: the College of Liberal Arts and Behavioral Sciences, the College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, the College of Science and Technology, the College of Education, the Barbara Jordan-Mickey Leland School of Public Affairs, the School of Communication, the Thurgood Marshall School of Law, the Jesse H. Jones School of Business, the Thomas Freeman Honors College, the College of Continuing Education, and the Graduate School.

Long-time Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Beta Kappa member Dr. James A. Hefner established the foundation for the TSU Phi Eta Sigma chapter chartering. Dr. Hefner is currently a distinguished visiting professor at TSU while on a two-year leave of absence from Harvard University. Chapter advisers Dr. Della Bell and Mrs. Virginia Day assisted chapter president Isis Green, vice president Maria Tavers, secretary Eugene Ansah, treasurer London Maclin, and historian Bianca Gonzalez in conducting the chartering ceremony. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel presented a brief history of Phi Eta Sigma prior to presenting the TSU charter to university president Dr. John Rudley and chapter president Isis Green. Dr. Rudley and university provost Dr. Sunny Ohia shared closing remarks.

2010 Chapter Activities, Projects, and Leadership

More than 365 Phi Eta Sigma chapters nationwide offer national recognition to academically motivated students through induction into the honor society and by awarding local and national scholarships to those who excel in academics, leadership, and service. Many of these local campus chapters conduct activities and projects that allow their members to work together for common goals that benefit the campus and community, as well as the members themselves. The emphasis on promoting scholarship, exercising strong organizational skills, participating in campus and community help projects, and developing innovative programs to fit each local campus never fails to impress Forum readers.

As Phi Eta Sigma members are making a difference at their schools and among fellow students, as well as in their homes, communities, and chosen careers after they leave the campus, the Phi Eta Sigma family applauds their efforts. Several chapters have shared with the national office brief glimpses of their members' activities and accomplishments. Following are the reports submitted to the Phi Eta Sigma national office by press time:

Boise State University hit the ground running immediately following its April 2010 chartering, making initial plans for involvement in the university's plan for civic engagement. The chapter anticipates a minimum of two community service projects per semester, including Rake Up, Boise! and Service Saturday. Since Boise State University has historically been a commuter campus, community development is an important goal for the chapter. Additionally, the chapter was represented at the 2010 national convention in Knoxville by chapter adviser Jeremy Ball and chapter president Maegan Wagner.

Colgate University chapter annually presents the "Professor of the Year" award to a distinguished faculty member.

Duquesne University chapter holds monthly meetings to plan numerous activities. Chapter members organize fundraising efforts on campus, do volunteer work in the city of Pittsburgh, and sponsor several student events each year.

Florida State University chapter attained new heights and achieved several long-standing goals in 2009-2010 with a strong leadership team of more than thirty student members. Highlights of the year include:

- Established a $25,000 endowment to fund an annual $1,000 scholarship for undergraduate research.
- Implemented an on-line membership application and payment process, contributing to a 30 percent increase in enrollment from the previous year.
- Achieved goal of inducting more than one thousand new members. The spring 2010 induction ceremony was a celebration of excellence, including special Excellence in Service awards for faculty members Joseph Calhoun and Adrian Husband. Other special guests included representatives from the offices of Honors, International Programs, Graduate Studies, Undergraduate Research, National Fellowships, and upper-division honor societies such as Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, and Omicron Delta Kappa.

- Designed a new line of Florida State PES gear with “I ♥ ΦΗΣ” and the traditional Florida State feathered arrow integrated into the designs. The chapter has produced t-shirts, pens, mugs, and buttons. Some items are for distribution in recruiting and promotion efforts, while others are for sale as a fundraiser.
- Prepared for a delegation of seventeen members to attend the 2010 national convention. Chapter leaders conducted fundraisers and coordinated with the Mercer University chapter on traveling by chartered bus to the convention.
- Chapter vice president chaired the FSU Council of Honor Societies, which coordinates the annual Honors Week events. Phi Eta Sigma proudly took first place in the “Battle of the Brains” competition, one of the week’s events.
- Conducted member meetings and outreach programs to recruit and involve students, including the annual “Black and Gold Affair” social event for current and prospective student members.

In addition to these highlights, the FSU chapter continued and enhanced its tutoring and peer advising service, coordinated several community service events, conducted workshops for team member leadership and communication skills development, and revived Phi Eta Sigma’s participation in the university’s homecoming activities. The chapter leadership team members celebrated their success with a banquet. Through hard work, increased name recognition on campus, scholarship endowment efforts, and leadership training, the Florida State University chapter is indeed reaching new heights, looking to the future, and finding new ways to reach out to past, present, and prospective members.

Gannon University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma clearly makes an impact as the largest organization on campus. This unique group with a variety of backgrounds, skills, and intelligence play an extremely important role in the campus community, bringing their special traits to everything in which they become involved. Whether picking up garbage during GIVE Day, making hundreds of birthday cards to make the wish of a very ill little boy come true, collecting clothing items to donate during the holidays, or helping to raise awareness of underpaid migrant farm workers, chapter members are always doing their part within the community. Not only do they endeavor to help others, but they also find ways to better themselves as a whole. They accomplish this by attending leadership forums both on and off campus, such as completing a challenge course at the WLD Ranch, and also by succeeding academically. Each semester they also attend many social events like campus plays, athletic games, and Greek events, which helps to create strong bonds and lifelong friendships. Although each and every member brings something different and exciting to the table, they all have one thing in common—they are proud to be part of a wonderful organization that holds such high expectations and a noteworthy reputation. Together, they make a difference on the Gannon campus and within the Erie, Pennsylvania, community that will forever be a part of their college experience.

Georgia Southern University highlighted the accomplishments of Phi Eta Sigma chapter president Jessica Spaleta, who was awarded a $6,000 national undergraduate scholarship in 2010. According to a press release from the university’s Web site, Jessica has a perfect 4.0 GPA and is active in the Volunteer Involvement Board, Honors Ambassadors, Exercise Science Club, and Omicron Delta Kappa Honor Society. Phi Eta Sigma at Georgia Southern is part of the school’s First-Year Experience, which is designed to ease the transition of freshmen entering the University. Jessica has worked directly with first-year students as a peer leader and peer instructor in the First-Year Seminar, a required course all students take in their first semester at the University. She and other members of Phi Eta Sigma play an integral role with incoming freshmen, especially as they participate in “Conversations with Professors,” a program that pairs all first-year students with a faculty member in their college and a student leader to discuss what will be expected of them academically.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania chapter members participated in local blood drives, Bowl for Kids’ Sake, Relay for Life, and AIDS Awareness Week. Over the past year, they have held bonfires, potlucks, Halloween bowling competitions, ice skating, and game nights. Inspired by a member of the local community, last year the chapter started a “Candy for Cord” program. This program involves selling candy to raise money for the transportation of cord blood to public storage banks. The young boy who inspired this program received cord blood as a method of treatment for his leukemia at three years of age. Today he is cured and is also selling candy to raise money for this cause.

Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis Phi Eta Sigma chapter started off the year with the annual officers dinner at a local restaurant, followed by manning a booth to promote interest in Phi Eta Sigma at the IUPUI Student Involvement Expo. For their first community service event, approximately fifty members participated in IUPUI’s United Way Day of Caring, preparing vacant houses for renovation in order to provide housing for low-income residents. Phi Eta Sigma has been the largest group participating in this event for five years in a row. The chapter also participated in the Coats for Kids drive, an annual citywide event to collect new and gently used coats for needy kids in Indianapolis. Chapter members teamed up with Indy Parks and Recreation for the fifth year in a row at the annual “Hauntless Halloween” at Holliday Park to provide a non-scary but entertaining Halloween for Indianapolis children. Approximately thirty-five members served as trail guides, crafts assistants, and refreshment servers. Also in October, twelve members traveled by bus to Knoxville, Tennessee, to attend the 2010 Phi Eta Sigma national convention. They exchanged lots of school and chapter merchandise with members from other chapters and served on various convention committees.

The IUPUI chapter conducts its annual Sock Drive for the Homeless each November, and in December the chapter adopts a local family to assist with gifts and food for the holidays. Other service activities in which chapter members participate include volunteering at the Humane Society and with Habitat for Humanity, Race for the Cure, and Relay for Life. They also hold social events, attend sporting events as a group, and plan various ways to step up the Society’s visibility on campus. The chapter members are proud of their accomplishments and wish to congratulate IUPUI 2010 national scholarship recipients Nhila Jagadeesan and Matt Rodgers.

Iowa State University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma builds upon its motto of “More than Recognition” by using past success to create opportunities for the future. The chapter held bi-weekly meetings throughout the academic year and organized several social, leadership development, and philanthropic events. At a canoe retreat, members developed strong bonds and worked together as a team to find buried caches. In one of their service projects, chapter members volunteered at a local clothing pantry to help sort and organize clothes for distribution to those in need. A major philanthropic event for the chapter is the annual Charity Skate, in which the community is invited to skate for free with the donation of canned goods. More than four hundred people attended the 2010 Charity Skate and donated over eight hundred cans of food.

Jacksonville State University's annual Phi Eta Sigma induction was held April 7, 2010, with approximately two hundred family members and friends joining the fifty-two new inductees for the formal ceremony, followed by a reception and short business meeting. The chapter awarded campus scholarships to five members who have maintained a perfect 4.0 GPA during their college careers: Tyler Gable, Matthew Ingram, Savanna Striplin, Morgan Whetstone, and Bethany Yopp. The officers attended fall and spring preview days to speak with potential students about Phi Eta Sigma.

Kennesaw State University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma has been energizing its members with an increased emphasis on service in the community. Recent projects include hosting the annual induction ceremony, co-sponsoring the university-wide First Year Convocation Program, delivering care packages for the holidays to elderly residents at The Ross Memorial Healthcare Center, and delivering encouraging and thankful holiday cards to troops overseas via the Armour 4 Troops organization. The chapter has also made strides in campus awareness of the organization by participating in a university-wide event called Bazaar on the Bricks. Many active Phi Eta Sigma members are also involved in other honors societies or clubs across campus, and there has been an effort to increase crossover events with multiple organizations. Upcoming Phi Eta Sigma service projects include volunteering at The Center for Children and Young Adults, feeding the homeless, and holding a "Cookies for Kids" Cancer Bake Sale.

University of Maryland, College Park Primannum Honor Society combines Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta to form one of the largest student organizations on campus. The chapter has strong leadership from a nine-person student executive panel that organizes events, manages finances, distributes scholarships, and promotes volunteer activities. Primannum sponsors numerous events to promote social relationships, academic excellence, and community service. The chapter's service projects include making Halloween cards for the local children's hospital, donating canned food to various organizations, conducting a book drive for children in homeless shelters, volunteering for Read for America, and giving school supplies to local elementary schools. Primannum also held personal statement workshops, hosted wellness seminars, and presented scholarship to outstanding student leaders. Chapter members look forward to another large induction class in the spring with close to one thousand inductees.

SUNY Oneonta chapter mourns the loss of chapter adviser, Dr. Michael P. Merilan, who passed away in July 2010. Dr. Merilan was dean of the College of Science and Social Sciences. He was an integral part of the Phi Eta Sigma chapter since its chartering in 1994 and had provided chapter adviser leadership since 1998. The entire family of Phi Eta Sigma extends heartfelt sympathy to Dr. Merilan's loved ones and to the SUNY Oneonta chapter and community.

Oklahoma City University participates in OneGive, a campus wide charity event, and in the "Light the Campus" event in December.

Pennsylvania State University chapter members are involved in numerous community service activities each year. These include the American Red Cross blood drives, The Second Mile Program that provides tutoring services in elementary and middle schools, and volunteering with the SPCA and The Oaks Retirement Center. The chapter holds regular meetings and promotes the Society's scholarship program. Chapter members congratulate Kelsey Krebs as the recipient of a national $6,000 undergraduate scholarship for 2010-11, as well as local scholarship recipients.

University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg chapter members volunteer in the community and raise funds to benefit several national and local organizations. In the fall of 2010 they participated in a Heart Walk and raised funds for the American Heart Association. Members donned Halloween costumes for the Hobgoblin Hikes event at Twin Lakes. They did volunteer work for Meals on Wheels and at soup kitchens around Thanksgiving. Members also work with a local center to raise awareness for the prevention of child abuse, in addition to raising funds for local animal shelters. Campus projects include organizing stress management events and offering free tutoring for UPG students.

Wartburg College Phi Eta Sigma members provide volunteer tutoring upon request throughout the school year. The chapter holds a reception for first-year students who are named to the Dean's List after the fall semester. Chapter members participate in Walk for Wishes to raise funds for the Western Illinois University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma conducted its 2010 induction ceremony during Family Weekend in October. Of the seventy-six students who responded to invitations to be inducted, thirty-nine inductees participated in the ceremony with approximately one hundred relatives and friends attending as guests. The keynote speaker was Thomas Sadler, associate professor of economics and decision sciences, who works with the FYE Program and serves as faculty coordinator for summer orientation. Professor Sadler and three other faculty members were inducted into the honor society as honorary members in recognition of their service to first-year students.

Johnston Hands Off UNCW Chapter Leadership

Professor John Brennan (right) presenting Professor W. Lee Johnston with the Phi Eta Sigma chapter service award

Dr. W. Lee Johnston has served as the founding adviser of two chapters of Phi Eta Sigma in North Carolina. On October 28, 1974, Dr. Johnston and then Grand Secretary-Treasurer James E. Foy chartered the 175th chapter at Campbell University. On March 17, 1979, Dr. Johnston and Dean Foy chartered the 197th chapter at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, where Lee continued to serve as the chapter adviser for thirty-three years. Lee has touched the lives of thousands of students with Phi Eta Sigma membership, and UNC-Wilmington chapter members have often been the recipients of national Founders Fund scholarships.

Dr. Johnston received his B.A. degree in American history from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he was the organizing president of Gamma Beta Phi Honor Society. He earned his

M.A. and Ph.D. in government and politics from the University of Maryland. He was on the faculty at Campbell University from 1972 through 1977. Lee has been a faculty member in the political science department at UNC-Wilmington since 1977. In addition to serving Phi Eta Sigma as adviser, he was instrumental in organizing the UNCW chapter of Phi Kappa Phi in 1980. He has been recognized by UNCW as an outstanding teacher by the 1989 Trustee's Teaching Excellence Award and by the 1992 Chancellor's Distinguished Teaching Professorship. At the 2000 Phi Eta Sigma national convention, Dr. Johnston was presented with the Society's Distinguished Service Award.

At the fall 2010 Phi Eta Sigma induction, the UNCW chapter celebrated the "changing of the guard," as Dr. Johnston and chapter members welcomed the incoming chapter adviser, Dr. John Brennan, assistant professor of public and international affairs. During that occasion, Dr. Johnston received the chapter's service award and reflected on his career at UNC-Wilmington and his years of Phi Eta Sigma leadership.

Mathbor Touches Lives Through Global Service

Golam M. Mathbor

During the Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops of Phi Eta Sigma in Knoxville, Tennessee, the Monmouth University chapter was among several chapters receiving the Commendation of Excellence Award, also known as the “Pathways” award. The Monmouth chapter delegation on hand to receive the award at the October 2010 convention included chapter adviser Dr. Golam M. Mathbor and chapter officers Bryan Martin (president), Matthew-Donald Sangster (vice president), Lori Mueller (secretary), Sonya Shah (treasurer), and Aziz Mama (historian). Dr. Mathbor noted that much of the credit for the prestigious “Pathways” award goes to Ms. Reenie Menditto and Ms. Erin Campbell-Hawk of the Honors School for their outstanding work in organizing induction ceremonies and providing year round administrative and support services for this Society.

Professor Golam M. Mathbor is associate dean of Monmouth University’s School of Humanities and Social Sciences. He has provided chapter adviser leadership for the Phi Eta Sigma chapter at Monmouth since 2005. Dr. Mathbor taught in Bangladesh and Canada for nine years prior to his appointment at Monmouth University in 1999. He is highly published in a number of professional journals and has also taught courses in Latvia, Austria, and Kosovo.

Dr. Mathbor was a member of the President’s Task Force on a Center for Global Education from 2005-2007, a member of the Quality of Life Task Force of the Polling Institute, and a faculty member of Urban Coast Institute. Since 2002 he has provided leadership for Monmouth University’s Global Understanding Project (GUP), which became the Institute for Global Understanding in 2008. Dr. Mathbor has presented papers for its Global Understanding Conventions from 2002 to 2009, chaired the Global Understanding Conventions for the years 2006 and 2007, and wrote articles in the Global Matters Newsletter of the GUP.

With regard to international involvement, Dr. Mathbor served as coordinator of the International and Community Development (ICD) concentration of the university’s master’s program in social work from 2001-2006. As ICD coordinator, he organized field internship sites for ICD students in Bangladesh, Mexico, Latvia, and Canada, which provided opportunities for U.S. graduate students to enhance their knowledge base in international development issues. Dr. Mathbor also served as the associate secretary-general of the International Consortium for Social Development (ICSID) for 2004-2008 and was elected vice president of ICSID for 2008-2013. He was appointed chair of the 17th ICSID International Symposium on “Good Governance: Building Knowledge for Social Development Worldwide,” which was held in Dhaka, Bangladesh, January 3-7, 2011, and co-hosted by Monmouth University’s School of Social Work.

Furthermore, Dr. Mathbor worked as project coordinator of Monmouth, USA-ATTISTIBA, Latvia project, financed by U.S. State Department, and helped develop the curriculum for the program. He also led students on academic excursions to the National School of Social Work of the National University of Mexico (UNAM) in March 2005 and March 2007, laying the foundation for Monmouth University to sign an educational partnership with UNAM in 2008. His passion for reaching and assisting students globally translates to his work with Phi Eta Sigma and the outstanding students at Monmouth University.

Neher Heads New Butler College of Communication

In the summer of 2010, Butler University in Indianapolis, Indiana, launched its first new college in over half a century: The College of Communication (CCOM). The new College represents the convergence of faculty and programs of three pre-existing departments from two other colleges.

In the role of interim dean of the College is Dr. William Neher, who has served as Phi Eta Sigma chapter adviser at Butler University for twenty-five years. Dr. Neher graduated from Butler in 1966 and went on to graduate school in communication at Northwestern University. After completing research for his doctorate in Kenya in East Africa, he accepted an invitation to return to Butler for his first teaching experience. In 1974, he became dean of the University College at Butler, a capacity in which he served for eight years. Back in the department of speech communication, Dr. Neher helped develop the major in public and corporate communication and taught in the Change and Tradition program. He served as editor of the Indiana State Speech Journal for more than twenty years and as chair for numerous state and national communication boards and commissions. At the 2008 Phi Eta Sigma national convention, Dr. Neher received the Society's Distinguished Service Award for his devoted leadership.

The mission statement of the new College of Communication highlights the importance of preparing students for the new realities of digital communication in global settings. The mission statement further recognizes the “centrality of communication as a basic human right,” and commits to preparing “graduates to be socially responsible and civically engaged leaders in their careers and communities.” Dr. Neher acknowledges that he and the College faculty must “recognize that, in the ‘real world,’ the artificial boundaries we have become accustomed to in colleges and universities are really that — artificial. The word that best describes the contemporary world of communication professionals is ‘convergence.’ And, that was the strongest impetus for our new College.”

Phi Eta Sigma Members Earn Recognition from Upper Division Honor Societies

Mortar Board, founded in 1918, is the premier national honor society recognizing college seniors for outstanding achievement in scholarship, leadership and service. The society provides opportunities for continued leadership development, promotes service to colleges and universities, and encourages lifelong contributions to the global community. Each year, Mortar Board National Foundation awards fellowships to assist members in financing their graduate studies. Annually, members are chosen to receive these fellowships based on a history of academic excellence, strong recommendation, scholarly promise, financial need, and Mortar Board involvement.

Mortar Board announced that $39,500 has been awarded to eleven exceptional members for their graduate education during the 2010-2011 academic year. Phi Eta Sigma member Sonja Ardoin, a 2001 inductee at Louisiana State University, was awarded the Mortar Board Diane Selby Fellowship for $5,000. She is seeking a Ph.D. degree in educational administration at North Carolina State University.

Tau Beta Pi, the engineering honor society, named five members as 2010 Laureates in the Association's annual program to recognize gifted engineering students who have excelled in areas beyond their technical majors. Included in this group is Travis W. Walker, who was inducted into Phi Eta Sigma at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology in 2004. Walker, currently a chemical engineering graduate student at Stanford University, was cited for his diverse achievements in athletics, in Boy Scouts of America, and for international efforts with mining techniques and assistance to underprivileged children.

Additionally, Tau Beta Pi selected twenty-eight young engineering students, including the four Phi Eta Sigma members below, to receive $10,000 graduate fellowships for the 2010-2011 school year: Zachary S. Lamb (Auburn University, 2006), Salman H. Naqvi (New Jersey Institute of Technology, 2007), Julian J. Reyes (Washington State University, 2007), and Courtney E. Shell (Texas A&M University, 2007).

Tau Beta Pi Scholars for 2010-2011 will receive cash awards of up to $2,000 for their senior year of engineering studies. These scholars include the following Phi Eta Sigma members: Helen E. Durand (UCLA, 2008), David L. Freese (University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 2008), Tai T. Luu (New Jersey Institute of Technology, 2008), Derrick C. Nelson (University of South Alabama, 2008), Stephen P. Palecek (The University of Alabama, 2007), Ryan D. Ziegler (South Dakota School of Mines & Technology, 2007), and Carolina F. Penteado (Florida Institute of Technology, 2008).

Founders Fund Scholars
2010–2011

Statute VII of the Constitution and Laws of Phi Eta Sigma provides that all of the income from the Founders Scholarship Fund shall be used to grant annually one Scholar-Leader of the Year Scholarship of $10,000 and one or more Distinguished Member Endowed Scholarships of up to $7,500 each to members of Phi Eta Sigma. Five such scholarships shall be designated for members pursuing full-time graduate degrees, thirty-five such scholarships shall be designated for members pursuing full-time undergraduate degrees, and one or more awards of $1,000 shall be designated for members for use during one year of full-time undergraduate study.

Fund income available for the 2010-2011 scholarships was $285,000, making it possible to award one $10,000 Scholar-Leader of the Year Scholarship, four $7,500 Distinguished Member Graduate Scholarships, thirty-six $6,000 Distinguished Member Undergraduate Scholarships, and twenty-nine $1,000 undergraduate awards.

The members of the Scholarship Committee were: Mr. Tony Kemp, Chairperson, Mercer University; Ms. Mary Jo Custer, Syracuse University; and Dr. John Sagabiel, Grand Secretary-Treasurer. The committee used the following criteria in selecting recipients:

- 1. High scholastic record with a minimum 3.5 cumulative GPA.
- 2. Participation in local chapter activities.
- 3. Evidence of creative ability.
- 4. Potential for success in chosen field.
- 5. Letters of recommendation, not to exceed three.

Profiles and photographs of the recipients of the 2010-2011 scholarships follow, as well as photographs of the award recipients.

Courtney has served her Phi Eta Sigma chapter in various leadership roles, including secretary, vice president, and president. She volunteered her time working annual membership drives for her chapter and collecting membership forms and dues. Courtney also assisted in the planning and setup for her chapter's induction ceremonies. In 2009 she was the recipient of the $6,000 Charles Burchett Endowed Undergraduate Scholarship.

Courtney attended the 2010 Phi Eta Sigma National Convention in Knoxville, Tennessee, as a member of the host committee. Prior to the convention, she assisted the chapter advisers with preparations for The University of Tennessee to act as convention host.

Courtney is a member of Lambda Pi Eta National Communication Honor Society and Mortar Board Honor Society. She was named to the Dean's List throughout her undergraduate career and was a University of Tennessee Chancellor's Scholar. Courtney is also a member of Gamma Sigma Sigma Service Sorority, Student Alumni Associates, and Collegiate 4-H, and she was the 2009 University of Tennessee Miss Homecoming. She has been employed as a student assistant and as a peer career adviser.

Having completed her bachelor's degree at the University of Tennessee, she is now in a two-year higher education administration graduate program at the University of Tennessee. She is very excited about continuing her education in order to motivate, encourage, and inspire the success of future college students as a career.

Phi Eta Sigma Icon Jim Foy Dies at Age 93

[from Tuscaloosa News. (October 12, 2010). Retrieved October 12, 2010 from <www.legacy.com/obituaries/tuscaloosa/obituary.aspx?n=james-edgar-foy&pid=145949245>]

Former Phi Eta Sigma Grand Secretary-Treasurer James Edgar Foy V passed away at an Auburn, Alabama, hospice facility on Friday, October 8, 2010. For more than fifty years, Dr. Foy was a central figure in the honor society. Serving for more than a quarter-century as Auburn University dean of students, he was one of the school's most well-known and respected figures.

Born November 7, 1916, in Lexington, North Carolina, Jim spent his boyhood in Eufaula, Alabama. He learned the Alabama Polytechnic Institute (now Auburn University) Alma Mater from its author Bill Wood, a friend of Jim's older brother who was an Auburn student. In 1932 the Foy family moved to Tuscaloosa, where Jim graduated from Tuscaloosa High School before entering the University of Alabama to earn degrees in sociology and history. He excelled as a student, earning membership in several honor societies including Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Phi Eta Sigma. He was initiated into Sigma Nu fraternity during the same ceremony as Paul "Bear" Bryant. Jim earned his degrees and honors while working five jobs: distributor for The Saturday Evening Post and for Beechnut Chewing Gum, grader for a sociology professor, butcher for the A&P grocery store, and silver polisher for a local jewelry store.

Upon his graduation, Jim was assistant to the dean of men at the University of Alabama until enrolling in Naval Aviation Flight training in 1942. He was a fighter pilot in the Solomon Island campaign and was awarded the Air Medal for Meritorious Service. He also served as a flight instructor and aviation safety officer, and he was the executive officer of fighter squadron VGF75 attached to the Franklin D. Roosevelt super carrier when World War II ended.

After the war, Jim returned to Tuscaloosa to go into private business with his brother-in-law before resuming his position as assistant dean of men and earning his M.A. degree at the University of Alabama. In 1950 he moved to Auburn University as assistant director of student affairs and became dean of student affairs there in 1952, the position he held until his retirement in 1978. He earned his Ph.D. degree from Michigan State University in 1969. In 1975 the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators named him the Outstanding Student Personnel Administrator in the nation. Jim's other memberships included Alpha Phi Omega, Pershing Rifles, Arnold Air Society, and Auburn Rotary Club.

Dean Foy was involved with Phi Eta Sigma from 1936 until 1992. As Grand Secretary for thirty-nine years, he was the installing officer for 205 chapters across the nation. He and his wife Emmalu operated the Phi Eta Sigma national headquarters from offices on the Auburn University campus during that time. He also represented the Society on the Council of the Association of College Honor Societies and served as that organization's president from 1965 to 1967.

Well known for his unique "Warrrrr Eagle" cheer, Dean Foy was the embodiment of the Auburn spirit at sporting events. At the request of the Auburn Student Government Association, the Board of Trustees named the Student Union Building in his honor. Jim had been instrumental in promoting the annual Alabama-Auburn football game during his ODK presidency at the University of Alabama. In his honor, the ODK Circles of Alabama and Auburn renamed the trophy for the victor of the Alabama-Auburn Iron Bowl game as the ODK James E. Foy V Sportsmanship Trophy. In 2002 Jim also received the Auburn Alumni Association's Lifetime Achievement Award.

Jim became a Christian at the age of eight and was a member of Auburn United Methodist Church since 1950, where he served on boards and committees and was a choir member and Sunday school teacher. He met his wife Emmalu while serving on the Wesley Foundation Board in Tuscaloosa, and the two of them shared a lifelong love of music.

Athletics were always a part of Dean Foy's life. He was involved in high school football and tennis and later enjoyed golf, fishing, water skiing, sailing, and swimming. At the age of 62 he took up snow skiing, a sport he continued to enjoy regularly until age 84. For his 90th birthday, he requested to fly over Auburn and Lake Martin and was honored by Auburn graduate and Opelika citizen J. B. Stockley with a flight in a vintage T-6 Texan, a plane similar to one Jim had trained in during WWII.

Dean Foy was preceded in death in 2004 by his wife of 60 years, Emma Lucretia O’Rear Foy. He is survived by two daughters, Mary Lou Foy of Colorado and Susan Foy Spratling and her husband Benjamin B. Spratling III of Birmingham; a grandson, Benjamin B. Spratling IV; a step-granddaughter, Camille Spratling; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Caine O’Rear, Jr.; numerous nieces and nephews; one remaining cousin, Florence Foy Strang, age 102, in Eufaula; and the national family of friends, colleagues, and students whose lives he touched throughout the years.

A Tribute to the “War Eagle”

by Elaine J. Powell,
Phi Eta Sigma Executive Director

“Little did I realize when I borrowed $10 from my brother to join Phi Eta Sigma at the University of Alabama in April 1936 that this society would fill such an important and compelling place in my life.” These words began the farewell article written by James Edgar Foy V for the 1992 issue of the Forum magazine, words that were prompted by his retirement as Grand Secretary-Treasurer of the Society. As the iconic voice of the Auburn University spirit cry, Foy remained energetic and vibrant long after he ended his professional career. Although his hearing and physical strength had diminished in recent years, his zest for living life to its fullest remained strong right up until the final days before his passing on October 8, 2010.

Phi Eta Sigma would indeed become a central part of Jim Foy’s life. Following his induction, he became an active student member and was involved in the Fifth National Convention at the University of Alabama in 1937. Jim’s involvement in Phi Eta Sigma continued when he later became adviser to the Alabama chapter and provided leadership for Alabama to again serve as host chapter of the Ninth National Convention in 1948. During that convention he was elected to the national Executive Committee, and at the 1950 convention he was elected as editor of the Forum.

This was a transitional time in Phi Eta Sigma history—when the founders and early leadership were still very much involved, but new leaders were emerging as the Society grew. Jim felt privileged to be in the company of distinguished Society leaders such as founder and former Grand President C. M. Thompson.

At the 1952 convention at Purdue University, the current Grand Secretary William E. Alderman of the University of Cincinnati chose not to run for reelection. James E. Foy, who was then dean of student affairs and chapter adviser at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute (later Auburn University), was then elected to the office of Grand Secretary. The Forum of Phi Eta Sigma 75th Anniversary Edition (1998) notes Dean Foy’s careful and conservative approach to his position and responsibilities in Phi Eta Sigma:

Such prudent concern and precise detail would characterize the leadership of Secretary Foy through the leadership years and beyond. His attentiveness was reciprocated by Grand Treasurer Raymond E. Glos, dean of the School of Business Administration at Miami University (Ohio). Their extraordinary tenure would be supported by numerous other leaders in colleges across America.

For many years Dean Foy and Dean Glos worked closely together to handle the business affairs of the honor society, and Jim held Ray Glos in very high esteem for his lifetime of dedication and service to Phi Eta Sigma. In 1978 Dean Foy retired from Auburn University but expressed his interest in continuing his role with Phi Eta Sigma. Dean Ray Glos chose to resign as Grand Treasurer in order to accept nomination and election as Grand President in 1980. The Twenty-fifth National Convention at the University of Florida voted to combine the offices of national secretary, treasurer, and Forum editor and elected Jim Foy into that position for a four-year term.

During his nearly forty-year tenure as a national Phi Eta Sigma leader, Dean Foy was the installing officer for 205 chapters. He represented Phi Eta Sigma as a member of the Association of College Honor Societies and was honored to serve as ACHS president 1965-67. The Society's total memberships increased from 41,602 in 1952 to 462,519 in 1991, and the scholarship funds awarded to Phi Eta Sigma members increased from $600 in 1952 to $42,000 in 1991. Since 1978, Dean Foy and his wife Emmalu operated the national office from the James E. Foy Union Building at Auburn University, as the building had been recently renamed in honor of the former dean of students. Jim acknowledged that his wife managed the office with “the highest degree of service and quality”, and that she “set new standards for promptness, efficiency, quality, and economy for the operation of a college honor society.” (Forum, 1992)

Dean Foy’s leadership in Phi Eta Sigma spread over four decades with varied responsibilities. But his greatest pleasure came from his service as chapter adviser at both the University of Alabama and Auburn University. He received intense joy and satisfaction from interacting with students and providing honor society recognition and rewards, as expressed in his farewell article in the Forum:

I was deeply rewarded, enjoying day-to-day fellowship with outstanding freshman scholars and rejoicing as I have watched them during following decades of accomplishment. I have also rejoiced in watching student delegates at national conventions as they exhibited judgment and maturity in governing the Society.

Dean Foy was a recipient of the Society’s Distinguished Service Award at the 1980 Florida national convention. At the Seventy-fifth Anniversary National Convention in Indianapolis, both Jim and Emmalu Foy, along with thirty other longtime Society distinguished leaders, were presented with plaques commemorating the endowment of national scholarships in their names. Those awards were only small expressions of appreciation from the Society to a man who committed so much of his life and energy to bringing national recognition to outstanding students across the nation. But in his words, Jim felt he was the beneficiary of his association with the honor society:

I am deeply indebted to Phi Eta Sigma for the opportunity to serve it and to make so many friends all over the country. My constant good wishes are with the new national officers, the chapter advisers, and all members. May God continue to bless you as you move to new heights and new service.

Thank you, Phi Eta Sigma; thank you very, very much!

Much of Phi Eta Sigma’s success and strength is the result of the distinguished leadership and dedicated service of James E. Foy. His legacy is the enthusiasm and spirit of encouragement that he conveyed to students and colleagues alike, especially through Phi Eta Sigma national recognition and scholarships. THANK YOU, DEAN FOY!

A Tribute to the “War Eagle” (cont’d)

Dean Foy was a mentor and teacher in every sense of the word. Student affairs professionals on his staff and Auburn students experiencing his influence are richer for having lived and worked together with him. Dean Foy saw only the best in what people could be and could achieve. I am a better human being because I had the privilege of knowing Dean Foy. His life lessons live on in all with whom he associated.

James E. Foy—a man of unsurpassed optimism, energy, and enthusiasm that he shared with everyone who knew him. He was a Christian gentleman whose life demonstrated his values—integrity, fair play, loyalty, compassion, and commitment to excellence. His fervor for Phi Eta Sigma was a model for both students and faculty advisors. “Knowledge is power” was the truth that he always espoused. He gave his best when his best was needed; he looked for the best in others and gave the best he had. His life epitomized the words of Robert Browning, “A man’s reach should exceed his grasp or what’s a heaven for?”

Dean James E. Foy truly touched the lives of so many people. Dean Foy was the type person that had such an impact and your life was so much richer because of his impact. He was always doing good deeds and would help his fellow man in any way possible. Auburn University is a greater place today because of Dean Foy. He was indeed a prince among men.

Jim Foy was a great person. “Mr. Phi Eta Sigma” for years. I cherish a photo taken outside the Foy Union Building on the Auburn campus with Jim holding our two daughters (quite young). Jim truly was a pillar of strength in our Society.

I first met Jim Foy in 1980 in working with him to bring a chapter of Phi Eta Sigma to the campus of Tarleton State University. Early on I found him to be the dedicated professional and personally charming man that he was. When Dr. Foy arrived in Stephenville, Texas, he impressed everyone with his contagious enthusiasm and sharp wit. After presiding over the installation ceremony he stayed in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lamar Johanson for the evening before going back to Auburn wearing Dr. Johanson’s gift of a Stetson cowboy hat. Jim told me that he proudly wore it to the office the next day and many times after that. Jim and I enjoyed many professional and personal conversations over the years, but one experience that I vividly recall was the time that his chair tipped over backwards from a small, elevated platform during the convention at Oklahoma State University. We watched in horror as he tumbled on the floor, but he immediately jumped up and shouted, “Where did that linebacker come from?” As a good athlete and snow skier until late in his life, Jim had rolled expertly with the fall and avoided injury. Jim Foy, former Navy fighter pilot in WWII, knew “how to roll with the punches.” I am a better person for having known Dean James Foy.

Phi Eta Sigma will forever benefit from the legacy of Jim Foy. He was a remarkable individual. I don't think I ever saw him without a broad smile on his face. He shepherded Phi Eta Sigma through some turbulent times with grace and dignity. Students were always first with Dean Foy and it showed. No matter how busy he was, he always had time for students or a newbie collegiate like myself. Thank you, Dean Foy, for all of your contributions to Phi Eta Sigma. We will never forget you.

It is difficult for me to reflect on the life of Dean Foy without including memories of Mrs. Foy. Dean and Mrs. Foy touched lives. The team of Foy and Foy was a perfect match, never tiring of sharing the Foy and Auburn spirit of standing for what was honorable and productive. They lived life to the fullest, while generously sharing their values with their extended family, including our Phi Eta Sigma membership.

Jim Foy is now back in the arms of his precious wife Emmalu. Dear friends, Rest in Peace.

Phi Eta Sigma and Daddy: A Daughter's Memories

by Susan Foy Spratling

(Daughter of former Grand Secretary-Treasurer James E. Foy V)

Daddy was the only boy among six initiates tapped into the National Honor Society in high school—the rest were girls. He felt most conspicuous. When he entered the University of Alabama, he earned membership in Phi Eta Sigma—at that time, a freshman honor society for men. Encouraged by meeting other young men of academic achievement like himself, he formed lifelong friendships in that chapter. He was elected to the national Executive Committee in 1947, and a year later, he became editor of the Forum, the national magazine of the organization.

In his job as a men's student personnel administrator, Daddy was concerned about scholarship among men. In fact, his master's thesis addressed the issue of academic failure among male students. He viewed Phi Eta Sigma as a way of rewarding freshmen men who attended to their studies. When he moved to the Dean of Men's office at Auburn, he established a chapter of Phi Eta Sigma in 1950. As Grand Secretary-Treasurer, he and Mother both worked very hard to expand the number of chapters across the country while keeping initiation fees the lowest among honor societies, he himself having been unable to pay his own initiation fee in college. Daddy was proud that Phi Eta Sigma was first to include women in its membership when federal law prohibited distinguishing between men and women in college campuses.

As long as I can remember, Daddy and Mother worked for Phi Eta Sigma. My first paid job—25 cents an hour—was to alphabetize the entire historical set of paper membership slips in Daddy's office. I loved it. Dean [C. M.] Thompson was a Dean and Mrs. Foy with family and friends at an awards ceremony at Auburn University in 2002. Daughters Susan Foy Spratling and Mary Lou Foy stand next to their mother and father respectively.

In Remembrance:

Joan K. Nelson 1942-2010

Dean Joan K. Nelson, a Phi Eta Sigma leader at both the chapter and national levels, passed away on October 9, 2010, after a long battle with cancer. She served as Phi Eta Sigma chapter adviser at the University of California, Los Angeles, from 1983 to 2002.

A native of Pennsylvania, Joan earned her bachelor's degree at West Chester University and her master's degree from Temple University. She had worked in student affairs at UCLA for thirty years and advised numerous honor societies before retiring from her position as associate dean of students in June 2010.

Dean Nelson was elected to the Phi Eta Sigma Executive Committee in 1986 and served on the Committee until 2000. In that capacity, she served on the scholarship committee, conducted convention workshops, and developed a convention evaluation tool. At the 1992 national convention, she was honored with the Society's Distinguished Service Award.

Joan's commitment to service extended beyond her professional work to the community, having been a leader with the area YWCA and the Ecumenical Black Campus Ministry. She and her husband, Dr. H. Viscount (Berky) Nelson, also a UCLA faculty member, were very devoted to leadership development and mentoring of students.

In addition to her husband, Joan is survived by two sons, Christopher and Berk, along with the national family of Phi Eta Sigma members and advisers who are fortunate to have known her.

frequent visitor in our home, and my sister Mary Lou and I even took a train trip to visit him one summer in Champaign-Urbana, Illinois. Mother was always busy getting certificates filled in by the calligrapher and mailing pins out in time for chapter initiations. After he turned sixty, Daddy learned to snow ski. Thereafter, he often combined establishing a new chapter of Phi Eta Sigma with a ski trip. Thus, many chapters came to be established in the Rockies.

Phi Eta Sigma played a huge role in Mother and Daddy's life, and in the life of our family, until they retired from it in 1992. They were both very proud of the high quality and low fees of the Phi Eta Sigma organization. I hope it continues to be affordable and to reward freshmen who pay attention to their studies—especially the young men, the original reason for the founding of the organization.

The Legacy of Active Leaders: An Historical Look at the Establishment of the Undergraduate Research Scholarship Endowment at The Florida State University

by Christine Boyd, Chapter Adviser

The endowment of a Phi Eta Sigma scholarship to fund undergraduate research at Florida State University was a long and complex process involving generations of chapter officers and advisors. But in the spring of 2010, the process finally came to fruition.

In 1955, the Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society was chartered at The Florida State University. Initially established as an organization for men only (qualifying women were invited to join Alpha Lambda Delta), Phi Eta Sigma at Florida State inducted an average of thirty-one new members annually for almost twenty years. With the passing of Title IX in 1972, Alpha Lambda Delta was discontinued at Florida State, and in 1974 Phi Eta Sigma began inducting both men and women. Annual induction numbers slowly climbed to nearly two hundred by the late 1980s. Throughout these first twenty-five years, our chapter collected just enough fees annually to pay for a modest membership drive and induction ceremony.

By the mid-90s, our growing membership’s demand for a more active chapter led to the establishment of our volunteer peer adviser program. It was also during this time that we decided to eliminate the traditional election of officers in favor of an open invitation to each member to serve on our leadership team. Every year, that team designs the form and focus that the chapter’s Executive Board will take. While the top priority remains the recruitment and induction of new members, the chapter also focuses on service activities (particularly those founded in academics), social events (that bring members together and promote our organization to new qualifiers), and member and leadership team development as ongoing themes. Our greater visibility on campus and the strong support of the Division of Undergraduate Studies dramatically increased the invitations we receive to participate in various events across campus.

As Phi Eta Sigma became more recognized at Florida State, more people joined and more members became active resulting in even higher membership numbers, greater visibility, increased opportunities and events, and an actual surplus of funds.

In the early 2000s with money from the sales of honor cords and our new t-shirts, we suddenly had more income than we needed to conduct our induction ceremony. At our fiftieth anniversary in 2005, a record 744 new members were inducted. We were now able to send more students to the Phi Eta Sigma National Convention, and conversations about the establishment of local scholarships began in earnest.

Although it was beginning to look as though we could afford to offer local scholarships, some basic questions needed to be addressed before we could move forward.

- 1) What would the award be based on? Academic achievement? Financial need? Chapter involvement? Specific program involvement such as Study Abroad?
- 2) What standards would be used to select the winner(s)?
- 3) Who would select the winner(s)?
- 4) How could we insure that, once established, we would have the funds needed to continue scholarship(s)?

For an organization with student volunteer leadership that changed annually, these questions initially appeared insurmountable.

During 2008 and 2009, three things happened that unintentionally, yet profoundly, affected our scholarship plans.

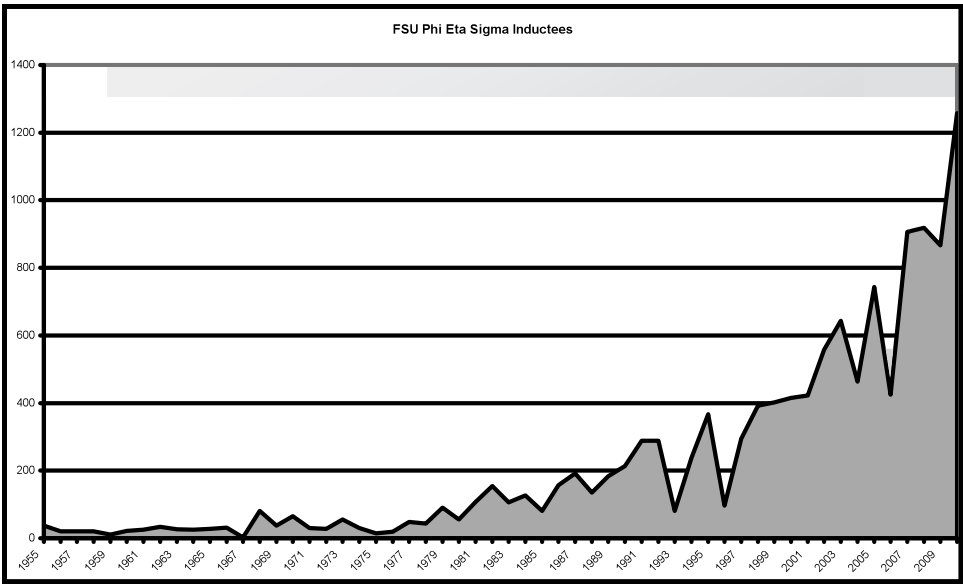

- 1) The Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Karen Laughlin, invited our leadership team to join in conversations with the University’s Foundation about how Phi Eta Sigma alumni could be helpful to our Division’s fundraising efforts.

- 2) Florida State’s Office of Undergraduate Research invited Phi Eta Sigma to serve as hosts at its annual symposium. This event had historically been promoted to our members, as had undergraduate research opportunities, but this formal invitation moved the two organizations toward a more clearly defined partnership.
- 3) Although it had been discussed for several years, the chapter’s leadership team began a serious exploration into the possibility of accepting on-line membership applications.

On March 29, 2010, The Florida State University chapter of the Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society inducted an unprecedented 1,257 new members, including our very first on-line joiners who numbered 1,085.

The monetary return from this forty percent increase in new inductees was immediate and impressive. We had hoped to have enough money to provide some small, one-time scholarships, but we found ourselves in a position to do much more.

The Legacy of Active Leaders (cont'd)

Dean Laughlin was delighted with our plan to support undergraduate research and suggested we explore the possibility of an endowment that would provide an annual award for generations to come.

Working carefully with the Foundation and the Office of Undergraduate Research, we negotiated a contract that will provide a $1,000 scholarship annually to one member of our chapter. The recipient of this award will be chosen by an already established group of faculty and staff. Applicants will be evaluated on their academic record and achievement, initiative, expression of academic and career interests, and the research project's feasibility and intellectual merit. The recipient of this scholarship will have the opportunity in September to present his or her research at the annual Undergraduate Research and Creative Activity Award Symposium.

On April 29, 2010, Florida State's Phi Eta Sigma leadership team presented a $25,000 check to University President Eric J. Barron to establish the Phi Eta Sigma Endowed Scholarship to Enhance Undergraduate Research. President Barron declared, "Funding this endowment is a remarkable statement of your love for Florida State." He further remarked, "You will have an impact on students not yet born."

The inaugural presentation of this scholarship award will take place in Spring 2011. University officials and the leadership team of our Phi Eta Sigma chapter are proud of what we have accomplished. But never a group to rest on its laurels, we have already begun to challenge Phi Eta Sigma parents and alumni to add to our endowment account. In 2011 new members will also be invited to donate a small amount to help grow the endowment. Our goal has now become the establishment of a $100,000 endowment that would permit the State of Florida to provide $50,000 in matching funds. Wish us good luck!

My Big Fat Phi Eta Sigma Senior Year

by Courtney Miller

Chapter President, The University of Tennessee

I have been looking forward to my senior year at the University of Tennessee, and the fact that I became president of our chapter of Phi Eta Sigma was the cherry on top. The 2010-2011 school year was a big year for the UT chapter of Phi Eta Sigma. In April of 2010, we inducted 241 new members, bringing our current enrolled membership total to 886. In October of the same year, we hosted the Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops of Phi Eta Sigma.

Our chapter meets once a month during the school year to keep members updated on campus events and service opportunities in Knoxville. Chapter members participate in many service projects each year. It is hard to pick favorites, but there are a few projects I would like to highlight.

The year starts to pick up in the fall around Halloween, with Boo! at the Zoo being held throughout the month of October at the Knoxville Zoo. This is usually our biggest service event of the season. Parents bring their kids to the zoo for a safe place to trick-or-treat, and our chapter volunteers dress up in costumes to add to the fun. This is also the time we participate in important local events, such as the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure, Buddy's Race for Cancer, the KnoxVenture Race benefiting Big Brothers Big Sisters, and Fantasy of Trees benefiting the East Tennessee Children's Hospital.

Around the holidays, our members love helping underprivileged children through the Angel Tree program. We usually shop for four to five children in hopes that a little bit of our time will make a happier holiday season for them. With the spring come our other big events. We conduct a fundraiser at UT's University Center for Go Red for Women to benefit the American Heart Association, and we also participate in a fun family event called Chocolate Fest.

Other ongoing projects, such as volunteering at the local Ronald McDonald House and the Love Kitchen, are incorporated into our schedule. At least once each semester, we also clean a specified campus Adopt-A-Spot, which is coordinated by the university's Student Government Association.

A new project we began last year was to host a "Study Break" on the study days of each semester before finals. We provide an opportunity for anyone, not just Phi Eta Sigma members, to take a break from studying and watch a movie. Of course, we never let anyone go hungry, so we incorporate some free food and free study supplies. Can you really have enough pens or post-its? I think not.

Our chapter is fortunate to have two advisers who work in Career Services at UT. Not only do we see them routinely to log service hours, which we love to do; but we are the first to know about job fairs and career workshops on campus. This way, at least the 886 students in our chapter have no excuse not to prepare for their future.

The biggest event of this year has been the Phi Eta Sigma National Convention. Members of the UT chapter were thrilled to serve as hosts of the Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops in Knoxville and greet attendees as they arrived. Every school in attendance contributed to the business of Phi Eta Sigma, while also having the opportunity to explore the historic city of Knoxville, Tennessee.

Never having been to convention before, I was impressed with the overall involvement in the committee sessions; but I would expect nothing less from fellow honor society members. I feel like a great number of ideas were shared this year. With the development of newsletters and implementation of social media, Phi Eta Sigma chapters across the nation can stay better connected on a national level, and that's something we all want to see happen.

I hope no one at convention was overwhelmed by all of the southern accents, but thankfully I heard only positive feedback from both advisers and students about their time with us. I hope everyone had a pleasant trip to Knoxville and the University of Tennessee. I had a wonderful time at convention learning about Phi Eta Sigma chapters across the country and making some new friends along the way. Thank you to everyone who made National Convention such a great success!

My senior year has definitely been filled with lots of great memories, and my involvement with Phi Eta Sigma has been a major part of them. The UT chapter is growing in size and strength each year. I am very proud to have been a part of all we have accomplished and look forward to even greater things to come.

Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops: Summary Report

Knoxville, Tennessee
October 1–3, 2010

The University of Tennessee chapter and the Crowne Plaza Knoxville hosted the Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops of Phi Eta Sigma on October 1-3, 2010. Set in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains in East Tennessee, the convention appropriately followed the theme, “Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective.”

National Executive Committee members arrived a day early to settle in before meeting on Friday morning. During a private dinner at Regas Restaurant on Thursday evening, the Executive Committee presented a commemorative plaque to

A presentation was also made to Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel and his wife Marge Sagabiel in honor of their forty years of dedicated leadership and service to Phi Eta Sigma and their recent retirement from the national office.

Chapter advisers, delegates, alternate delegates, and special guests arrived throughout Friday afternoon and evening. As the attendees arrived at the Knoxville airport, they were greeted by members of the University of Tennessee chapter host committee and representatives of Chariots of Hire, the company that provided shuttle service between the airport and hotel. Upon their arrival at the Crowne Plaza, they were once again welcomed by a UT chapter member and directed to the convention hospitality center. There they checked in with national office staff member Ria Butts or a member of the Executive Committee and then picked up their convention t-shirts and drawstring bags filled with convention materials and gifts from the UT chapter (such as pens and stress rocks) and the Knoxville Tourism and Sports Corporation (such as maps, pencils, coupons, and key chains). They were also able to grab some refreshments, see Society displays including scrapbooks of past conventions, and even display some of their own chapter items.

After checking in, students and advisers had the opportunity to relax in their rooms, get out of the hotel and see some of the downtown Knoxville area, or participate in roundtable discussions facilitated by student members of the Executive Committee.

Friday Evening

The Crowne Plaza chefs helped begin our convention activities by providing a taste of Knoxville with the Old Town Buffet. After everyone's appetites and taste buds were satisfied, it was down to business.

Grand President Molly Lawrence called the first business session to order and then introduced special guests, beginning with Knox County Mayor Tim Burchett. Mayor Burchett is a University of Tennessee graduate, and his father Dean Charles Burchett served as adviser of the UT chapter of Phi Eta Sigma for more than forty years. Mayor Burchett gave a warm welcome to the convention attendees, reminiscing about his father's love for and dedication to the honor society. He emphasized the history and tradition of the Knox County area, invited attendees to experience some of the area attractions, and encouraged the student members to continue to excel in their studies as well as other aspects of their lives.

President Lawrence next introduced University of Tennessee chapter president Courtney Miller, who welcomed the group and showed slides of "The Rock" on campus where chapter members had painted a welcome to the Phi Eta Sigma convention. Since "The Rock" is the only place on campus where graffiti is allowed, the greeting had been quickly painted over by someone else. Following Courtney's presentation, UT chapter adviser Mary Mahoney also gave a word of welcome to the attendees. Afterward, President Lawrence then called on guest Linda Milan to say a few words. Linda had recently retired from the Knoxville Tourism and Sports Corporation and was the main contact for the Phi Eta Sigma national office during the initial planning and preparations for the 2010 convention.

Then it was down to business with Grand Secretary Jack Sagabiel calling the roll of chapters. Executive Director Elaine Powell gave a general overview of the convention and made announcements. Next, President Lawrence called on members of the Executive Committee to describe the convention committees that they would be advising. The business session was adjourned as attendees broke into groups to comprise the following committees: Finance, Constitution, and Scholarship; Nominations; Future Directions; and Publications and Promotional.

The final event of the evening was the Ice Breaker, our traditional ice cream social and gift exchange. Students and advisers alike enjoyed making their own ice cream sundaes, making new acquaintances, and in some cases reuniting with old friends. They shared ideas and exchanged gifts such as decals, souvenir cups, t-shirts, pens, pencils, and even “silly bands.”

Saturday Morning

The day began with a continental breakfast, more delicious offerings from the Crowne Plaza. This was followed by the second business session, which included the report of the Grand Vice President and Grand Treasurer, as well as a PowerPoint presentation featuring recipients of the 2010-2011 Founders Funds scholarships and awards. After the business session, two workshop sessions were held, followed by the continuation of the committee meetings.

Student members of the Executive Committee conducted three leadership workshops, each one offered twice and each session heavily attended. Sam Morin (University of Idaho) made outstanding workshop presentations on “Chapter Public Relations.” Lindsay Painter (Florida State University) offered important self-help tips in her workshop on “Time Management.” Brad Lee (University of Alabama) provided suggestions on ways for Phi Eta Sigma chapters to effectively cooperate with other campus and community organizations in “Teaming Up for Success.” Finally, Mary Jo Custer and Ryan Dye led a workshop for chapter advisers and directed discussions on several topics of interest that advisers had identified earlier, such as effective chapter communications and retaining active members and chapter leaders.

Once the workshop and committee meeting sessions were completed, convention participants gathered for a delightful luncheon of soups, salads, and sandwiches. During the luncheon, a number of special awards were presented, including plaques for the outgoing student members of the Executive Committee: Brad, Sam, and Lindsay.

Four chapters had participated in the convention philanthropy project: Tennessee, Alabama, Florida State, and St. Ambrose. These chapters were recognized for their fundraising efforts to benefit music education in the Knoxville area. Mr. Walter Mencer, director of music education in the Knox County school district, was on hand to receive a check for $2,000 from Phi Eta Sigma to benefit music education programs in the district.

Another highlight of the awards luncheon was the presentation of the Society's Distinguished Service Award to five outstanding, long-serving chapter advisers: David Dillman of Abilene Christian University, Sandra Cohea-Weible of Salisbury University, Kerry Holzworth of the University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg, Tony Kemp of Mercer University, and Paula Stuetgen of the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. DSA recipient Leslie Soltis of Mercyhurst College was unable to attend.

The one millionth member of Phi Eta Sigma was Lauren Godbolt from St. John's University, shown here accepting recognition gifts from Jack Sagabiel and sharing the moment with chapter adviser Erica Levy.

Phi Eta Sigma reached a very significant milestone in its growth during the 2009-2010 academic year—the induction of more than one million members. The one-millionth member of the honor society is Lauren Godbolt, who was inducted into the St. John's University chapter on October 15, 2009. In honor of her being member number one million, Lauren received a special certificate, in addition to a custom-designed Phi Eta Sigma watch, an honor cord, and a medallion.

Finally, eighteen chapters represented at the convention were recipients of "Pathways" awards for assisting the national office by submitting "perfect" membership orders during the previous academic year. Another forty-one chapters received their award certificates by mail. The leaders of these chapters prepare their membership submissions so carefully that the national office staff does not need to count or alphabetize records and does not have to call or e-mail the chapter adviser to obtain additional information or clarify any details of the order. The national office staff realizes the effort that these chapter leaders put forth in order for membership records to be processed more efficiently, and the staff members offer sincere congratulations and thanks to all the “Pathways” award recipients.

Saturday Afternoon and Evening

At the conclusion of a very full morning, it was time for some fun and sightseeing. Chariots of Hire and Great Smoky Mountains Tours combined to give the convention attendees a great overview of the city of Knoxville and the University of Tennessee. Students and advisers enjoyed visiting the McClung Museum on the UT campus, along with a bus tour of other campus highlights including Neyland Stadium. The buses also took them by several points of interest around the city, stopping for a photo opportunity at the statue of Roots author Alex Haley. The group also had free time to stroll and shop in Market Square and to take a step back in time at the unique Mast General Store on Gay Street in downtown Knoxville.

As the sun began to set, the buses transported everyone to the Women’s Basketball Hall of Fame. Attendees gathered on the front steps of the Hall for the official convention photograph. Next, they entered the building and feasted on a mouth-watering Tennessee barbecue buffet catered by the Crowne Plaza. Afterward, the visitors scattered into various sections of the Hall of Fame, where they were able to view the museum exhibits, test their skills on the basketball courts, or burn off some energy on the dance floor.

After a long night of interviews and deliberations, the members of the Nominations Committee presented their recommendations for election to the national Executive Committee during the final business session.

After returning to the hotel later, some convention committee members needed to complete their final reports. Additionally, the dedicated members of the Nominations Committee finished interviewing candidates and deliberated into the early morning hours to determine the slate of candidates they would present to the convention at the final business session.

Sunday Morning

Convention attendees awoke to the sights and aromas of a hearty breakfast buffet at the Crowne Plaza before moving into the ballroom for the final business session. Delegates were ushered to a designated area for easier identification during voting.

After calling the meeting to order, Grand President Lawrence called on the chairperson and/or recorder of each convention committee to present their report. Delegates voted to elect the following candidates to the Executive Committee, as recommended by the Nominations Committee: Molly Lawrence (Alabama) as Grand President; Mary Jo Custer (Syracuse) as Grand Historian; Jeremy Ball (Boise State) as chapter adviser member of the Executive Committee; Christina Christiansen (BYU), Andrew McGuire (Gannon), and Shayla Priddy (Tarleton State) as student members of the Executive Committee. The Finance, Constitution, and Scholarship Committee recommended the establishment of the Sharon Harrell Endowed Scholarship, as well as an amendment to the Constitution and Laws adjusting the number of scholarship applications that may be submitted by chapters for the national competition. Both items were approved by the convention. Other committee reports addressed a number of issues, such as communications, publications, and continuing philanthropic efforts.

After the business session was adjourned, previous and incoming members of the Executive Committee met briefly for photos and information exchange. As attendees checked out of the hotel and boarded motorcoaches headed for the airport, they bid fond farewells to old and new friends alike. The students and advisers who comprised the 2010 national convention made a lasting impact on the future of Phi Eta Sigma, and they should recall their experiences in Knoxville with a sense of pride and accomplishment.

Convention committees often broke into small groups for more in-depth discussions.

Members of the Publications and Promotional Committee discussed various ways that Phi Eta Sigma communicates with members and prospective members.

Chapter advisers shared ideas, concerns, and successes in their small groups during the Saturday morning workshop.

“Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective”: Phi Eta Sigma Philanthropy for Arts Education

by Brad Lee, The University of Alabama

Four Phi Eta Sigma chapters were recognized at the 2010 National Convention and Leadership Workshops in Knoxville, Tennessee, for their participation in the Society’s first ever National Philanthropy Project. As a way to give back to the community hosting the convention, the student members of the Executive Committee selected Knox County Schools Arts Programs to be the recipient of the Society’s philanthropic efforts as part of the convention theme “Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective.”

Each participating chapter completed a unique and different project. The St. Ambrose University chapter held a “Kiss the Ass” competition, in which students voted to have their favorite prominent faculty or staff member kiss a donkey by placing money into marked jars. The faculty or staff member whose jar collected the most money had to pucker up on the university’s quad during the busiest time of day. In addition to donating money to Knox County Schools, the chapter also donated money to Charity: Water, a group that provides clean drinking water to developing countries.

Members of the University of Tennessee-Knoxville chapter were early risers the day after Labor Day, selling dozens of donuts at various stations across their campus. The Florida State University chapter partnered with Pizza Hut, with a percentage of sales from their local restaurant being contributed to the cause. Finally, The University of Alabama hosted a talent show-style competition featuring the greatest talent the Capstone has to offer. The chapter also held several smaller fundraisers and donated part of the proceeds to Theatre Tuscaloosa.

In total, these participating chapters raised $2,000 for Knox County Schools. At the Saturday convention awards luncheon, Mr. Walter Mencer, director of music education for the school system, accepted the check with much gratitude. These funds would be divided between two music programs that were in desperate need of financial assistance to continue operating. Phi Eta Sigma is proud to have had a part in bringing creative expression and the performing arts into the lives of young people in the community that was so gracious in welcoming the Society’s fortieth national convention.

The convention delegates recommended the continuation of a national philanthropy, with projects changing every two years to reflect the host city and the theme of the convention. Be on the lookout for information about the next National Philanthropy Project for Phi Eta Sigma’s forty-first national biennial convention in 2012.

Report of the Grand Secretary: The Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops

by John W. Sagabiel
Knoxville, Tennessee
October 1–3, 2010

The opportunity to meet and greet each of you is a convention highlight for me. Many of us have communicated by e-mail messages or talked by phone numerous times but are just now meeting for the first time.

The delegates attending the 1992 Purdue convention and every convention since have placed a great deal of faith and trust in me. The presentation of this secretary's report, and at a later time a treasurer's report, will provide information you may use to form an evaluation of eighteen years of growth and honor society leadership.

Francis Bacon once said, "A wise person will make more opportunities than one finds." Creating opportunities, with guidance from convention committees, is becoming a way of life for the Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society. This is the spirit of our Society.

The duties and responsibilities of the Grand Secretary-Treasurer are stated in Article VII, Sections 1, 2, and 3, of the Constitution and Laws and read as follows:

"The Grand Secretary-Treasurer shall keep and safely preserve all records and archives of the Society; shall record all laws, orders, resolutions, and proceedings of the Grand Chapter; shall act as the Secretary of the Executive Committee and report the minutes at the regular sessions of the Grand Chapter succeeding the election; issue charters and copies of the ritual as hereinafter provided; and shall keep an accurate enrollment of all members of the Society and issue certificates of membership as prescribed by statute.

"The Grand Secretary-Treasurer shall collect and preserve all moneys due or donated to the Society, paying out the same upon order of the Executive Committee; shall keep accurate books of account and, upon request, furnish the Executive Committee with a statement of the finances of the Society, of the individual accounts of the several chapters, or of the accounts of the members thereof; shall render an annual statement of receipts and disbursements to the Executive Committee. The books and accounts shall be audited under the direction of the Executive Committee. The Grand Secretary-Treasurer shall give, at the expense of the Society, a good and sufficient bond, approved by the Executive Committee.

"The Secretary-Treasurer shall be Editor of the Forum."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE. The Executive Committee met before and after the Thirty-ninth National Convention and again during June 2009 at Sanibel Island, Florida. The Committee met again before this convention; any recommendations it has for the convention will be channeled to appropriate committees.

CONTACT WITH CHAPTERS. Communica - tions with chapter officers and advisers have assist- ed them to achieve the purposes and objectives of Phi Eta Sigma in ways consistent with the policies of the host institution and the expressed will of the local members. Contact has been maintained on such matters as:

- a. Processing orders for keys, brochures, and chapter supplies
- b. Receiving and filing permanent member- ship records
- c. Preparing and mailing certificates for new members and assisting chapter record- keeping by providing a computer print-out of new members as they are inducted
- d. Preparing directory and activities reports for the Forum
- e. Supplying campuses with Hints on Learning and Studying pamphlets
- f. Supplying application forms for scholar- ships
- g. Informing chapters of convention plans

OFFICE EXPENSES. Phi Eta Sigma is fortunate that Western Kentucky University has assigned highly desirable office and storage space to us at no cost, and we are also the beneficiary of university postal service, copy service, WATS telephone service, Internet connection, FAX service, parking, and physical plant support as though we were a university department. The office staff consists of Executive Director Elaine Powell, Records Manager Ria Butts, and Executive Assistant Kelly Figley.

NEW CHAPTERS. Since the University of Louisville Convention in 2008, eight new chapters have been authorized. These are:

Installation No.	Name of Chapter	Date of Installation
249	University of South Florida	April 7, 2009

179	University of Tennessee at Martin	April 29, 2010
368	Texas Southern University	November 19, 2010
369	Indiana Wesleyan University	TBA

CONSTITUTIONS. An adequate number of copies of the most recently revised constitution are kept on hand at the national office. A revised con- stitution is included with the chapter mailing fol- lowing every national convention.

HINTS ON LEARNING AND STUDYING PAMPHLETS. Some 175,000 copies are distrib- uted each year without charge to campuses where there is a chapter of Phi Eta Sigma. The publication is now also available on the Phi Eta Sigma website. Every chapter should take pride in distributing this very popular study pamphlet. It receives enthusi- astic response from all of those who use it. It is also a means of introducing Phi Eta Sigma to new students; many chapters use it at orientation ses- sions, since there is a description of the Society on the back page.

PHI ETA SIGMA BROCHURES. The “Question and Answer” brochure and the “Overview” brochure are designed for chapter use in contacting eligible students and for public rela- tions efforts as needed. They should be enclosed with letters of invitation to join; they may also be mailed to parents of prospective members and in personal contact invitations.

NUMBERS OF INITIATES. The following tabulation lists the number of inductees by years since the founding of the Society in 1923. I urge all chapters to make a concerted effort to induct all eligible students, with personal invitations to those who do not respond to the first letter and/or e-mail. A stimulating program of academic, service, volunteerism, and worthwhile social activities will also attract high achieving students. I urge all chapters to keep local fees as low as possible so no student will decline membership because the cost is beyond his or her resources. Our current national membership fee is the lowest of all nationally certified honor societies, and we expect chapters to strive to keep their costs low, as well.

INDUCTION CEREMONY BROCHURES.

This brochure was revised by the 2004 convention and is to be used at each induction. Each chapter should have at least two copies. National can supply needed copies at no charge.

THE FORUM. The national office has a bound set of the Forum for the years 1931-2009. The University of Illinois library also has a complete set of bound copies. Each chapter should make sure a copy is given to the president of their institution and to their local library. The Forum contains a comprehensive and current overview of Society yearly accomplishments. Each new member is entitled to a copy of the current issue following induction.

AUDIT REPORT. The full and complete 2008-2009 CPA audit report was printed in the 2010 Forum. The 2007-2008 audit was carried in the 2009 Forum.

GENERAL REMARKS. I share with you the pleasure of recognizing the value of Phi Eta Sigma in enhancing the quality of life on campuses where it exists and in its value in recruiting and retaining excellent students. Together we recognize the vital part it plays on its many campuses through numerous activities of much variety and value. I applaud the part played by chapter officers, individual members, and most importantly, chapter advisers. The men and women who advise and sustain the local chapters are crucial to the functioning, welfare, and value of the chapter to its members and to its institution. I am especially pleased that, through the undergraduate awards, Phi Eta Sigma is able to express some of its appreciation to local chapters and institutions.

I am honored to have served Phi Eta Sigma during the past eighteen years. It has been both pleasant and rewarding for me.

Distinguished Service Awards

Distinguished Service Award Chronicle

The Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Service Award was established by the Sixteenth National Convention hosted by Indiana University on December 6-8, 1962. The first recipients were recognized during the Seventeenth National Convention hosted by the University of Illinois in 1964.

Members of Phi Eta Sigma who have given loyal and devoted service to the Society for a period of no less than five years may be recognized with the Distinguished Service Award to be presented at the national convention.

Since the founding of the award, seventy-six members have been recognized for their devotion to honors leadership. Past recipients attending the Fortieth National Convention in Knoxville include: John Harrell, Jack Sagabiel, B. J. Alexander, Molly Lawrence, Lee Johnston, Mary Jo Custer, Joni Burke, Marilyn Moore, and Lisa Ruch.

CITATION: SANDRA COHEA-WEIBLE, SALISBURY UNIVERSITY

Sandra Cohea-Weible began to touch the life of Phi Eta Sigma as a chapter adviser in 1985, only two years after the Salisbury University chapter was chartered as our 237th chapter on May 15, 1983.

As Assistant Vice President of Academic Affairs from 1994 to 2010, her honors leadership has set the standard for honor society recognition. In 1998-99 her chapter established the “One of a Kind” award to recognize each year the area high school providing the most new Phi Eta Sigma members to the Salisbury chapter. The chapter also created a $10,000 Salisbury foundation fund account, which yields at least one $500 local Phi Eta Sigma member scholarship each year.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank Sandra for sharing her special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting her with the Society’s 2010 Distinguished Service Award.

CITATION: DAVID L. DILLMAN, ABILENE CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY

Dr. David L. Dillman began to touch the life of Phi Eta Sigma by serving as charter chapter adviser of the Abilene Christian University chapter, chartered on April 26, 1986, as our 263rd chapter. Dr. Dillman's duties as Professor of Political Science at Abilene Christian also include leadership as Director of the Jack Pope Fellows Program, a scholarship program for students entering public service. He is highly published and also coordinates the academic minor in Peace and Social Justice.

David began his long string of Founders Fund Scholarship recipients with his support of Kenneth Ford III, a pre-med student in 1987. His yearly induction for new members touches the lives of Abilene Christian's academically motivated students and their loved ones each year.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank David for sharing his special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting him with the Society's 2010 Distinguished Service Award.

CITATION: KERRY HOLZWORTH, UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH AT GREENSBURG

The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg chapter was chartered as our 342nd chapter on April 15, 2000, with Dr. Kerry Holzworth providing the chartering leadership.

Kerry has been a member of the biology faculty at the University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg for over thirty years and has received two Outstanding Faculty Service Awards for his work with students. His chapter has been represented at each Phi Eta Sigma national convention over the past ten years, and his members are frequent beneficiaries of the Founders Fund national scholarship program.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank Kerry for sharing his special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting him with the Society's 2010 Distinguished Service Award.

CITATION: TONY KEMP, MERCER UNIVERSITY

Approximately one hundred years after the founding of Mercer University in Macon, Georgia, the Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society chartered its 32nd chapter on the Mercer campus on March 26, 1932.

Tony Kemp arrived on the scene at Mercer in 1998 as Associate Director of Academic and Advising Services. He took on the role of Phi Eta Sigma chapter adviser in 2002 and very quickly began laying the foundation for the chapter's seventy-fifth year anniversary celebration to be held in March of 2007. Founders Fund scholarship recipient Christy Webb assisted Tony in planning the milestone banquet and anniversary celebration.

Tony was elected to the Phi Eta Sigma Executive Committee during the 2006 national conference and currently provides national leadership as our Grand Vice President.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank Tony for sharing his special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting him with the Society's 2010 Distinguished Service Award.

CITATION: LESLIE A. SOLTIS, MERCYHURST COLLEGE

The Mercyhurst College chapter was chartered on April 28, 1986, as our 265th chapter with 106 charter members and long time honors administrator and professor of philosophy Dr. Ludlow Brown as charter chapter adviser.

Leslie A. Soltis is an assistant professor of mathematics at Mercyhurst College. She began to touch the life of Phi Eta Sigma as the honor society's chapter adviser in 2001. Since that time her chapter has held large inductions of new members and has compiled a long list of Founders Fund scholarship recipients. The most recent Mercyhurst scholarship recipient was Michelle Magermans, who was awarded $6,000 for the 2009-2010 school year.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank Leslie for sharing her special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting her with the Society's 2010 Distinguished Service Award.

Note: Unfortunately, Ms. Soltis was prevented from attending the convention because of inclement weather causing airline cancellations and delays. Her award plaque was shipped to her following the convention.

CITATION: PAULA STUETTGEN, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-EAU CLAIRE

The University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire chapter was chartered on October 6, 1966 as our 143rd chapter. The chapter's chartering leadership was provided by Dr. Ormsby Harry, who remained chapter adviser until his retirement in 1984. Dr. Harry was the recipient of our Society's Distinguished Service award in 1986.

Paula Stuetzgen is Senior Coordinator for Assessment and Special Projects at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. She became Phi Eta Sigma chapter adviser in 1999 and since then has recommended (very successfully) at least one Founders Fund scholarship recipient each year. Paula holds memberships in numerous honor societies, including Phi Kappa Phi, Mortar Board, and Omicron Delta Kappa, and she provides chapter leadership for several of those societies on campus as well.

In the spirit of our founders and the seventy-six previous award recipients, we thank Paula for sharing her special touch, fellowship, and leadership with us by presenting her with the Society's 2010 Distinguished Service Award.
